BANK EMPLOYE IDENTIFIES MAN WHO FIRES SHOT

Slayer of Pittsburgh Cashier is Picked Out Of Large Group.

One Other Bandit is Recognized By Victims Of Robbery.

Pittsburgh, Jan. 28.—Walter Joyce and Oren Graeme, Pittsburgh men arrested yesterday after the First National bank of Crafton had been robbed and Harold Moss, assistant cashier, had been killed, were today identified by bank employes as two of the party of bandits, who committed the crimes. Greame was pointed out by Frank King, janitor of the bank, as the man who shot Moss.

Seven persons, taken yesterday after the bank robbers had escaped from a party of city detectives who had intercepted them in the North Side as they were returning from the scene of the robbery, were lined up in Central police station with a number of other prisoners. Employes of the bank who witnessed the robbery, looked them over and Joyce was picked out by five of them as one of the robbers.

King, however, was the only man to say he recognized Graeme. He told the police that one of the bandits climbed over the top of the partition separating the cashier's cage from the main banking room and that Graeme was the man. The others agreed that while they could not identify Graeme as the robber, they did agree that the man who went over the partition was the one who fired at Moss.

DETECTIVES GUARD THEATERS FROM THUGS

New York, Jan. 28.—Detectives of the New York police department were today detailed to duty at all theaters and resorts in the theatrical zone, where bandits operated successfully last night and others were ordered to round up men recently released from prison.

Seven armed bandits in three seperate exploits yesterday and last night wounded two men and escaped with about $7000 in loot.

Abraham Morrison, president of the Morrison Fountain Pen company, and an assistant, were bound and gagged by three bandits in their office in the Gaiety theater building, Broadway and 47th street and robbed of $600 in cash and several gross of valuable pens.

Two bandits last night held up a Philadelphia-bound truck laden with silk valued at $30,000, shot and wounded Overton, negro chauffeur and August Koepp, guard, and fled when a crowd gathered.

The paymaster of the Borden Farm Products company, was held up yesterday morning by two men who escaped with pay envelopes containing $4,500.

FEARS RUSS-JAP ALLIANCE IN FUTURE

Gregory Mason, one of the editors of "The Outlook" spoke at the High School auditorium, Friday evening as a number of the lecture course.

He dealt with the problems in Russia and Japan, and dwelt on the relations between those two countries and the United States. Mr. Mason stated that this country had never taken Russia nor Japan into its conferences, and that he felt, that unless France, Great Britain and America recognized these countries, that Russia would align itself with Germany, and eventually they would unite with Japan. China then would nearly be forced into the alliance. The speaker said of course this was merely his conception, based on opinions expressed in foreign countries.

The next number will be Tom Skeyhill, an Australian soldier, who lectures Feb. 24. Skeyhill spent last year in Russia and he will talk on Russian conditions.

SPIRITED BIDDING MARKS REALTY SALE

Sheriff E. A. Bryan conducted a public sale in the court house rotunda at 10:30 this morning. The property, a house and lot on South Williams street, near Hancock, was sold to Samuel Harrah after spirited bidding for the sum of $1915. The property was appraised at $1500 and was involved in a foreclosure in the case of the Knox Realty company vs. W. P. Smith, et al.

IS FINED $400 FOR POSSESSION OF BOOZE

John Tote, arrested Friday morning following a raid on his place in Wilson street, was found guilty of illegal possession of intoxicating liquor in probate court yesterday afternoon and fined $400 and costs by Judge Alexander. Tote was unable to pay the fine and was sent to the county jail in default of payment.

BANDITS ARE ROUGH.

Cincinnati, Jan. 28.—That John Cafeo, employe of a fruit store, is alive is not because two negro bandits showed him any mercy today as he opened the store. After robbing him of $16 the two hold-up men hurled him headlong down cellar, rendering him unconscious, and then took two shots at him. One bullet pierced his trousers.

WOMAN IS RELEASED.

Gallipolis, Jan. 28.—Mrs Matthew Brooks, negro, who has been held in jail here for several days in connection with the death of Clayton Tallman, wealthy West Virginia cattle man whose body was found in the ruins of her home following a fire, was released by authorities today.

County Urged to Aid Work Of Red Cross Chapter

(Special to the Advocate)

Granville, Jan. 28.—Mrs. Frank Ray, president of the Licking County Board of Public Health, has received a letter from Mrs. Alice G. F. Miller of Newark, chairman of the Licking County Chapter of the American Red Cross, in which the writer says: "We want this still to be a county chapter and not have its membership confined to Newark alone. We should have members in every community to be thoroughly represented and we hope that each community will keep up its organization.

"You should be proud of the splendid work that is being done by your public health department.

"The home service work has been increasing instead of diminishing. Many ex-soldiers are developing tuberculosis, the after effect of being gassed. The Red Cross is helping to cut the red tape that impedes the progress of their claims; and in the mean times sees that they don ot suffer.

"The board hopes that the public health work will be taken over by the county next year, but the Home Service may have to go on indefinitely.

The public health nursing service report for December 1921 follows:

Number of patients	550
No visits made	328
School children examined	454
Diphtheria cultures taken	1147
Talks given to clubs	4
Office consultations	275
Home Service report for December:
Ex-service men or their families dealt with	95
Civilian families	4
Office visits	138
Visits to homes	10

Mrs. Ray states that the amount remaining of the fund appropriated for Red Cross public health services from the war chest will hardly finance the work for another year. She says the monthdly pay roll as about $7000. There are three nurses, an office girl and the up keep of two automobiles. About $17000 remains. Mrs. Ray and District Health Commissioner C. J. Loveless hopes that in another year at farthest, the county will make an adequate appropriation for public health work, as under the Hughes law, all salaries and other expenses of the county will be met by the state board 50-50.

Mrs. Ray states that last month the County Red Cross appropriated $250 for free anti-toxin used in diphtheria cases and Dr. Loveless asserts that the splendid co-operation of the nurses in helping to check the epidemic of diphtheria and scarlet fever has been of incalculable value to Newark, and in dollars and cents has probably been worth at least $100.00 to the city alone.

Mrs. Ray has arranged for Granville committees of the Red Cross to receive the one dollar membership fees at the Electric Supplies company headquarters on Broadway, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

KENYON GIVES OUTLINE OF PLAN

Recognizes Rights of Both Sides in Proposed Tribunal For Industrial Disputes.

Washington, Jan. 28.—The right of unions to organize and the right of non-union men to work wherever they may find employment are upheld in Senator Kenyon's plan for a tribunal to settle industrial disputes. Senator Kenyon's plan follow:

"The right of operators and miners to organize is recognized and affirmed. This right shall not be denied, abridged or interfered with in any manner whatsoever, nor shall coercive measures of any kind be used by employers or employees to exercise or to refrain from exercising this right.

"The right of operators and of miners to bargain collectively through representatives of their choosing is recognized and affirmed.

"The miners who are not members of a union have the right to work without being harassed by fellow-workmen who may belong to unions. The men belong to a union have the right to work without being harassed by operators who do not believe in unionism. The organizations have a right to go into non-union fields and by peaceable methods try to persuade men to join the unions, but they have no right to try and induce employees to violate contracts which they have entered into with their employers and the operators on their part have the right by peaceable means to try and persuade men to refrain from joining the unions.

"The right of women to engage in industrial occupation is recognized and affirmed; their rates of pay shall be the same as those of male workers for the same or equivalent service performed.

"Children under the age of 16 years shall not be employed in the industry unless permits have been issued under state authority.

"Six days shall be the standard work week. The standard work day shall not exceed eight hours.

"Punitive overtime shall be paid for hours worked each day in excess of the standard work day.

"When a dispute or controversy arises between operators and mine workers there should be no strike or lockout, pending a conference or a hearing and determination of the facts and the principals involved.

Senator Kenyon said his plan offered a solution for the coal industry's problems.

The Kansas industrial court idea, involving compulsory arbitration, he said had been proved futile.

Senator Kenyon's report did not detail nor analyize a tenth of the testimony by the committee in its investigation of the Minge disturbances.

"Both sides have been forgetful of the great third party, the public, which has a vital interest in preserving industrial peace" the report said.

"That members of the United Mine Workers have done acts of violence in this Mingo controversy cannot be disputed. The operators have been guilty of practices also, in portions of this region, that cannot be justified."

"The whole story of the contest, however," said Mr. Kenyon, "is one of disregard for and breaking of laws; of denials of constitutional rights; of a spirit of suspicion, hate and retaliation on both sides that does not augur well for industrial peace in that portion of the state."

LEAPS TO DEATH.

Newport, Ky., Jan. 28.—Many passers-by on the Fourth street Licking river bridge between Newport and Covington, Ky., saw a man climb over the bridge railing tday and deliberately hurl himself into the river. Boats which put out from both sides of the river found the body after a search of about 20 minutes. The man was about 75 years of age.

REED FLAYS SEN. WILLIS

"Congratulates" Ohio Senator Upon His "Ethics" and "Statemanship," in Newberry Matter.

Washington, Jan. 28.—The senate was told yesterday by Senator Reed, Missouri that "never in all the history of legislative bodies in the world has so shameless a resolution been adopted as that approved by the senate in confirming Senator Newberry in his seat.

"There is not a man who voted for this resolution," Senator Reed said, "who did not brand in red letters above and over his political record the word 'dishonor.' No word of tongue and no word or pen can describe the degradation of that resolution and self-confessed degradation of those who supported it.

"A new word ought to be introduced into our tongue—a Newberryism. It will not serve much use, however, because the thing that I have described has never happened before and it never will happen again, for there never will appear upon the face of this earth another band of gentlemen who will write down in cold type, 'the thing is bad, wicked, dangerous to the state, and therefore we do that thing; therefor we ratify it, we confirm it, we sanctify it.'"

Senator Reed said the resolution would make "a great platform for the senator who wrote it; and they say he wrote it all alone."

"I feel," he added, "that I ought to congratulate the senator from Ohio (Mr. Willis) upon his wonderful piece of political ethics and of modern statesmanship. I have not any doubt that when he runs again all the bill boards in Ohio will have this resolution in large letters and above it will be inscribed the words: 'Written by himself. He wrote it all alone.'"

PRAISES ILLINOIS ACTION.

Columbus Jan. 28.—Illinois deserves a great deal of credit for action in barring nine of its star athletes from further engaging in sports on the grounds of professionalism, "because it took a lot of moral courage for such a step," Dr. J. W. Wilce, football coach Ohio State declared.

CAMP SHERMAN SCHOOL IS FARCE MARX ASSERTS

Classrooms Are Makeshift Affairs Poorly Equipped He Declares.

Only Two Men in One Class of 80 Were at Work.

Cincinnati, Jan. 28.—That vocational training at Camp Sherman, Chillicothe, Ohio, is "a farce and a fraud," is the statement made by Judge Robert S. Marx, of this city, national commander of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, in a report presented today to Martin B. Madden, chairman of the committee on appropriations of the house of representatives.

The report is the result of a personal visit made by Judge Marx to the camp.

"The school rooms have been made over in a makeshift fashion for use as school rooms," states Marx. "In the electrical school which has an enrollment of 80, there were only 27 men actually present and of this number only two were doing anything." The equipment, he said, was such as could be picked up around any abandoned camp.

In the sign painting school, he said, he found the men seated in comfortable arm chairs around the stove and only two of the students were drawing or painting. Students told him, he said that the reason they were not working was that the equipment had not come. They did not even have the ingredients for mixing color.

Not a single student was in the plumbing school, said Marx. There also was a dearth of tools and equipment. In the bakery, Marx said, he was informed that the four students there baked bread in two different styles of loaves and that there was no equipment for the baking of buns and pastries, the preparation of which is necessary to a baker.

It looked like real work was being done in the tailoring school, Judge Marx states in his report. "There were only two or three men who seemed to idle, and it appeared that instruction was being given. One of the men quietly informed me that he had come to the camp to be a cutter, but all that he had done in six weeks were repair jobs and to help make 300 window curtains for the camp."

The report further states that the shoe repairing school was the busiest in the camp. The men said, however, according to the report, that they had come to camp to learn how to make shoes instead of repairing old ones. In the school of carpentry, he said the men were standing around and talking and that occasionally he would find a man who seemed to be busy.

Out of a total of 316 students at the camp, 78 were absent from school on his visit.

Other criticisms in the report follow:

The hospital, the old Elks' building, is wholly inadequate.

None of the buildings are fireproof.

Waste and extravagance in the conduct of the camp.

Two hundred and fifty employes on the payroll of the government.

Attitude of the officials smacked strongly of the military.

"We did not find a single student who expressed satisfaction with the methods of teaching or with the courses of instructions he was receiving," Judge Marx said. "Many of the students wanted to go home, but were afraid to ask fearing they would be dropped from training entirely and thus lose their chance for rehabilitation."

Capital Paralyzed by Heavy Snowfall; Traffic Blocked

Washington, Jan. 28.—Washington was cut off from the outside world today so far as transportation was concerned by one of the heaviest snow storms in the history of the capital.

Officials at the Union Station shortly before nine o'clock reported that no passenger trains had left Washington since midnight, and, with the snow continuing, prospect of getting any trains out was said to be poor. Three trains had arrived since midnight, two from New York, long over due, and one Baltimore and Ohio express from Cincinnati.

Starting late yesterday afternoon and still continuing early today the snow had covered the national capital to a depth of from a foot and a half to two feet. Street car service was practically suspended early today and prospects were all activity, governmental and otherwise, would be greatly curtailed.

The storm which covered a large section of the east, according to fragmentary reports available early in the day, did not come unheralded as for two or three days snow had been falling in the Atlantic states to the south of the Potomac river, in some states such as Virginia breaking long standing records as to depth. The weather bureau yesterday had issued a prediction of heavy snow through the east and northern portion of the south.

Pennsylvania avenue here was strewn with the hulks of wrecked automobiles. Absence of wind prevented the formation of drifts, but the depth on the level was enough to strand practically all vehicles except those of the heavier type.

ARMS PARLEY IS DISCUSSED

Senator Robinson Says Nation Should Demand Greater Accomplishments By Conference—Criticizes Four-Power Treaty.

Akron, Jan. 28.—Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, speaking at the Ohio bar association banquet last night, called upon the nation which rejected the League of Nations to demand greater accomplishments from the disarmament conference.

"It would be disastrous, after the United States had rejected the league of Nations," Senator Robinson said "to be satisfied with the limiting capital ships and the junking of a few other warships when such curses of war as the submarine, poisonous gas and liquid fire are unlimited."

Senator Robinson also doubted the readiness of the American people to accept the recently negotiated four power treaty which gave the political supremacy and dominions to Japan in the Pacific when we had refused to enter into a similiar agreement with all the nations of the world including our late allies."

Robinson's address was cut short in order to enable him to catch a train for South Carolina where he will go duck hunting on Bernard M. Baruchs' game preserve in that state for 10 days.

Judge Robert H. Day of Canton was chosen president of the Association of the Common Pleas judges of Ohio which was organized today by the judicial section of state bar association.

Other officers chosen were: Judge James W. Tarbell, Georgetown and Judge Chauncey L. Newcomer, Bryan, vice presidents: Judge Willard J. Wright, Lebanon, secretary and Judge L. R. Cameron, Marysville, treasurer.

Upon recommendation of chief justice C. T. Marshall of the state supreme court the newly organized body approved a resolution to urge the adoption of uniform rules of practice in the courts of the 129 common pleas judges of the state to standardize court charges on common subjects.

The bar association also went on record as approving the recommendations.

POPE'S ELECTION IS POSTPONED

Dispatch Received in Paris Says Conclave is Delayed So All Cardinals May Arrive.

Paris, Jan. 28.—A Rome dispatch to the Havas Agency says the opening of the conclave to elect a successor to Pope Benedict will be delayed 24 hours in order to give time for all the cardinals to arrive. The concalve originally was set for February 2.

New York, Jan. 28.—Cardinal Begin of Canada went aboard the steamship La Lorraine, this morning to await the arrival of Cardinal Dennis J. Daugherty of Philadelphia who will accompany him to Rome.

Called to the eternal city for the exalted task of assisting in choosing a successor to the late Pope Benedict, they hope to arrive before the Sacred College has announced the election of a new pontiff.

Neither of the cardinals would make any comment concerning the conclave, which begins next Thursday.

Cardinal O'Connell of Boston, the only other North American cardinal to go to the Vatican for the selection of the new pope, is already on the ocean on his way to Rome.

Philadelphia, Jan. 28.—Cardinal Daugherty left here at 8 a.m. today for New York whence he sails at noon for the conclave of Cardinals which will elect a new pope. The cardinal fears he will be too late to participate in the election.

Delaware: Ohio Wesleyan defeated the Michigan Aggies 25 to 21 at basket ball.

GLASSWORKERS OFFER TO ACCEPT WAGE CUT

Cleveland, Jan. 28.—Ten percent separated the wage committees of the National Window Glass Workers' association and the National Association of Window Glass Manufacturers from an agreement over the 1922 scale when they resumed their conference here today.

Replying to a proposition of the manufacturers calling for a 35 percent reduction from the present scale, the union offered to accept a 25 per cent cut. The manufacturers said they would give their answer at today's meeting.

GENOA PARLEY IS FINE-FOR EUROPE

Congressman Fess Declares If U. S. Enters Conference Europe Should Understand Our Conditions Clearly.

Akron, Jan. 28.—If the United States accepts the Genoa conference invitation, it should make clear that the only way for Europe to rehabilitate is to organize and capitalize the productive forces of the country, Representative S. D. Fess of Yellow Springs, declared here today in an address before the annual meeting of the Ohio Bar association.

"We have the gold and the credits; Europe has the depreciated paper money and the debts. She wants to sit with us in council. It may be very fine for Mary Anne, but awful tough on Uncle Sam," said Mr. Fess.

"First, stimulate production in Europe," he continued, "then cut off waste in useless standing armies."

Mr. Fess talked on "Our National Situation." The foreign problem, he said, is both diplomatic and economic. The country has made "distinguished progress with great honor to the nation and justice to all—diplomatically speaking," he asserted. Economically, he said "it has not succeeded so well."

The Ohio congressman arraigned the bloc system in the national legislative bodies. The cure for it, he said, is not "vituperation nor legislation. Rather, it is in lifting legislation on the high and proper plane that to be of worth, it must be in the interest of all the people and not of one group or section or race.

"Our legislators must first be citizens of the Republic, then of their districts.

"Too much is expected from legislation. The wildest and most vicious sort of legislation always can find a sponsor in congress and numerous backers in the country. Our danger is not only quack remedies as for fundamental conditions, but ill digested legislation, proposed first as temporary, then as permanent remedies. This is why at the very moment we loudly proclaim against government meddling in business, we go right on with enactment of more laws, every one of which will still further encumber the situation. We have now, it is stated, 21 out of every 100 grown citizens in some way connected with Uncle Sam's payroll."

The domestic burden, which is divided into sharp classifications, the speaker said, has been lightened considerably by the present administration. The domestic situation, Mr. Fess said, resolves itself into these lines:

High cost of government, due to the war.

Burdenous system of taxation.

A too high evel of cost of production, which is an economic rather than a governmental problem.

Withdrawal of capital from productive industry.

Inevitable unemployment.

General dislocation of agencies of production with consequent business stagnation.

"The remedy for the high cost of government is a rigid application of economy through the budget system and this is being done," Mr. Fess declared.

Respecting legislation, the Ohio congressman declared, "I am convinced that it should be possible for us to outline a program of legislation, put it on its passage and then adjourn."

This could be accomplished in the house, because there is a set of rules there, but "not so in the other house," the speaker said. "There," he asserted, "legislation is accomplished by exhaustion."

ATLANTIC COAST STATES BURIED BY HEAVY SNOW

Carolinas and Virginia Experience Heaviest Snowfall.

Virginia Reports Deepest Snow in History—Storm Continues.

Washington, Jan. 28.—The states comprising the middle Atlantic section today were buried and were being further buried under the heaviest snow fall since the long remembered blizzard of February of '99.

The storm which began with almost unprecedented falls of snow in the Carolinas and Virginia Thursday, was creeping up the coast, leaving buried cities, stalled trains, disrupted trolley service and a general suspension of business and social activities in its wake. It had reached the edge of New England early today, although its center remained off the Virginia Capes, weather bureau reports showed, and forecasts for snow tonight along the coast from New York north, although not as heavy as that over the middle Atlantic section.

The blanket of snow early today was the heaviest in the District of Columbia, with the fall recorded at ten o'clock as an even two feet. At that time it was still snowing and the weather bureau predictions was for the continuation of tho fall through day and night.

Starting shortly before dusk yesterday evening, the snow fell continuously through the night and by midnight trolley lines and railroads began to surrender.

In the national capital itself street car service was practically suspended at daybreak, but gradually service was restored on the trunk lines, but thousands of government employes were forced to struggle through almost knee-deep snow to the government departments, while many others in outlying and suburban sections took one look outside and decided to remain at home.

Although the snow fell with an absence of wind, thereby preventing drifts, the flakes fell so thick and fast during the night that numerous accidents were reported and the police received several calls for aid to find persons believed to have lost their way in finding their homes.

Reports to the weather bureau showed the fall of snow to have been the heaviest in parts of North Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia. The fall early today at Baltimore stood at fourteen inches. Lynchburg, Va., reported 30 inches, the heaviest in the history of the city. The storm was reported to be continuing at Richmond, Va., where street cars were completely tied up and many trains destined for Washington and points north stalled or held in the yards. Raleigh, N. C., reported seven inches with about a half inch of sleet and the snow still falling.

Conditions at Norfolk appeared to be the worst with a gale of 56 miles, having put a part of the business section of the city under water and crippled shipping.

WELLSTON BUSINESS BLOCKS ARE BURNED

Wellston, O. Jan. 28.—Much of the business center of this city was destroyed early today by fire which broke out soon after midnight and which was still burning at 9 o'clock this morning. Fire departments from Chillicothe and Jackson were called to assist in fighting the flames.

The Lincoln hotel and much of the block in which it was located was destroyed.

Among the larger stores burned were the Harry Carraeci dry goods store and the Goddard general store.

One woman was reported injured. The postoffice was moved to prevent the mail from catching fire.

Seven families living in the block destroyed were forced to flee from their homes in their night clothing. Some of their personal effects were saved.

Miss Goldie Robbins a telephone operator, was painfully injured while watching the fire when a telephone pole fell on her.

Estimates of the property damage range from $100,000 to $250,000.

Cincinnati: Charles M. Egan, internal revenue collector received instructions to abolish the internal revenue branch office at Hamilton.

FARTHEST NORTH UNIVERSITY TO OPEN ITS DOORS

Alaska Agricultural College and School of Mines To Open at Fairbanks.

College Campus on Tract Main Line of New Government Railroad.

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 28.—What it is believed will be the world's "farthest north" university—The Alaska Agricultural College and School of Mines at Fairbanks, within a hundred miles of the Arctic Circle—will open its doors next September, Charles E. Bunnell, former federal judge and now president of the institution, announced here recently.

The college campus is situated on a tract of land four miles from Fairbanks on the main line of the new government railroad, set aside by congress in 1915. The college itself was formally established in 1917 by an act of the territorial legislature and $60,000 set aside for buildings and equipment. The sum proved inadequate and in 1921 an additional appropriation of $11,000 was made. Most of the operating expense will be met by the territory of Alaska, but $50,000 will be available from federal funds, according to President Bunnell.

The first year's curriculum will offer four courses—agriculture, general science, home economics and mining, under present plans. Special short courses in mining will be given to meet the requirements of prospectors and others unable to attend during the full college year.

The work of the college, President Bunnell predicted, is destined to play an important part in the development of the territory.

"There was under cultivation in the immediate vicinity of Fairbanks last year," he pointed out, "a total of 1,120 acres. This land produced 100 tons of vegetables, 1,000 tons of oats hay, 1,270 bushels of oats and barley, 2,719 bushels of wheat, and 92 tons of potatoes. The wheat represents the yield of 181 acres. This yield can be multiplied many times as more land is brought under cultivation through the application of proper farming methods."

President Bunnell will remain "outside" for several weeks securing equipment for the school and employees for the faculty members.

DETROIT TRIES OUT NEW TRAFFIC SYSTEM

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 28.—A new system for control of traffic in the congested part of Detroit that is said to contain a number of features heretofore untried, and that will result in control of traffic over a distance of four miles from a single tower, will be put into operation here about February 1, it is announced by Police Inspector Harry H. Jackson.

The plan is an enlargement of the system now in vogue here. It provides for placing a great master tower at Woodward and Michigan avenues. By means of bells and lights a single officer in this tower will direct traffic from Detroit river to a point four miles from the heart of the business district on Woodward avenue.

All vehicular traffic in the congested district will move or stop in unison upon signal from the master tower. The signals will be repeated automatically in subsidiary towers, two of which are to be placed at each street intersection. Traffic officers will be relieved of giving signals, under this plan, and will be able to devote their attention to seeing that traffic laws are obeyed.

The subsidiary towers will be but 10 feet in height and will mark the corners of safety zones along the car tracks at each car stop and at other places. Lights on the subsidiary towers will, it is believed, meet with popular favor because they will be more level with the traffic than at present.

IOWA FARMERS BURN CORN

Moldy or Inferior Corn That Can Not Be Fed or Marketed is Burned.

Ames, Iowa, Jan. 28.—Iowa farmers are not burning corn this winter, except to a very small extent. For the greater part, such corn as has been burned has been moldy or inferior corn, not suitable for feeding or marketing, and that has always been done, more or less. It is the judgment of men who are in close touch with the situation that neither the supply of corn in Iowa nor the market price has been appreciably affected by the very limited corn burning in the state.

These statements about the situation are based on reports just obtained from county agents by R. K. Bliss, the director of agricultural extension at Iowa college. The county agents generally are in close touch with the situation and many of them have made special effort to secure information.

In 40 of 64 counties reporting to date county agents say that no corn is being burned; in five counties they say that no more than 10 percent of the farmers are burning some corn, usually with coal and wood; in one county two percent of the farmers are thus reported to be burning corn; in six counties agents say that more or less moldy and inferior corn is burned; in 12 other counties, agents say that very little, or a negligible amount is used for fuel. In one county corn is burned in the furnaces of the county court house, and the county infirmary.

It is interesting that farmers have in a good many counties gone positively on record against corn burning. In many sections, efforts were made in farm bureau meetings to secure endorsement of a movement to burn at least 100 bushels of corn on every Iowa farm. Almost invariably county agents report that resolutions to that effect were defeated by decisive vote.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING COST INCREASES.

Washington, Jan. 28.—The cost to the government for the vocational training of men who were disabled in the World War jumped more than two million dollars between the months of September and November, according to figures prepared by the U. S. Veteran's bureau.

Col. Charles R. Forbes, director of the bureau, attributes this increase directly to the "clean-up" campaign in which thousands of disabled war veterans, in grant of the assistance the government offers them were discovered and placed in schools and shops, where they are receiving instruction to overcome the handicaps of their disabilities.

On September 1 there were $2,733 men receiving training under the direction of the bureau.

DRIVES PILES AT AN ANGLE.

By an improvement recently made in the construction of a pile driver, it is made to drive piles either vertically or at an angle. "Batter" piling the latter is called, and is demanded in some kinds of soil. The new pile drivers are at work in a canal being constructed near New Orleans, La., which will be a great convenience to the shipping of the lower Mississippi.

LECTURE No. 107.
The Ford Transmission.

As there are in the neighborhood of 2,000,000 Ford cars in service, and as circumstances may arise, because of which many of our readers may at some time own a Ford, in addition to their present car, or alone, it is well worth while to study the special transmission used on it.

The transmission of the Ford car is known as Planetary Transmission, because the various sets of gears are always maintained in the same plane they never being shifted, as are those used on most other cars.

On the Ford the clutch and transmission are built together, and it might also be said that the foot or service brake is built into the transmission, the brake, clutch and transmission gears being in one unit.

The purpose of the planetary transmission is exactly the same as that of other transmissions, namely to give the engine a leverage on different speed ratios, and to give a means for driving the car backward.

Let us see how the Planetary Transmission accomplishes its purpose.

Suppose we wanted to move a safe which would require a pressure of 500 pounds at the point B, Fig. 1. If there were an obstruction, or fulcrum, on the ground as A, we could take a crowbar and, by using it as shown, move the safe with but a 100 pound pressure on its end, C. Thus we have a lever of 5 to 1.

Now study Fig. 2. Let use take the teeth of the stationary gear A as the obstruction or fulcrum as above, and let us assume that the teeth of the movable gear B are where we went the pressure as at B of the safe. Then to exert a pressure of 500 pounds at B only 100 will will be needed at C. The gears C might be regarded as a flat crowbar.

It is but a step to change the portion of gears shown in Fig. 2 to full gears as shown in Fig. 3 (and in Fig. 4, which is a side view. The point C we can convert into a pin and we can have this pin on the flywheel of the engine.

As we will want to release the gears, the same as the sliding gears are brought into neutral, there will have to be some means furnished to accomplish this. This can be done by attaching a brake drum to the gear D which is to be held stationary, and having a foot-operated band on this, so that the drum can be held stationary or be released at will.

By observing Fig. 4, you will notice that when the drum K is held stationary by the band L, and the flywheel, and, therefore, engine is revolving that the gears F and G will rool about D, and so drive the gear E, which is connected to the rear wheels through the propeller shaft, etc. The gears F and G might be regarded as a revolving crowbar.

When, however, the band L is freed, then the drum K will be freed, and as there will now be more resistance to the revolving of the gear E than to the gear D, the gears F and G will now roll on D and so simply drive the gear D and its drum backward. Thus there will be no tendency to drive the car by the running engine.

You will note that no gears are shifted, the connecting of the engine to the rear wheels being accomplished by the tightening of the bad on the drum(as to hold it from revolving; while the disconnecting is accomplished by the freeing of this band.

If the gears D and G were ten inches in diameter, and the gear E six inches, while F was four inches, then the leverage of the pin C would be 5 to 1, but this will not be the engine leverage. The diameter of the circle through which the crank revolves will be less than the diameter of the circle of the pin C and so there will be a resulting reverse leverage. Were the crank circle six inches, only six-tenths (6-10) of the pressure of the crank would be exerted on the pin C. Thus the resulting leverage would be but (6-10) six-tenths of five, or 3 to 1.

I have assumed the crank circle as the same diameter as the gear E, to simplify matters. This will be found to be a fair assumption if the leverage is figured out in detail to the rear wheels. The calculations will resolve themselves to this.

Now as to the speed ratio. By referring to Fig. 3, you will observe that if the gears D and G are of the same diameter, or have the same number of teeth (which they must have if the same diameter), then when the pin C has made a complete revolution, the gear G will have made a complete revolution about the pin, and the tooth A will again be in the position shown. Now the gear F has but forty teeth while E will have sixty, and so when it makes a complete revolution it will have rolled around but two-third of it. In other words, the tooth B will be in mesh with the tooth H of gear E. Now as the gears G and G are one piece, when gear G has made one revolution gear F will also have made one revolution and the tooth B will have to be in the position shown. In order, therefore, for the tooth B to be meshed with the tooth H, the gear E will have had to travel so that H comes to B, which will one-third of a revolution. Thus for every revolution of the flywheel the gear D will make a third of a revolution or expressing it differently, the engine will make three revolutions for one of the gear.

As the gears F and D are brought more nearly to the same diameter the greater will be the engine speed. Thus if they had forty-five and fifty-five teeth, gear E would move for only ten of its fifty-five teeth and the engine speed would be 5.5 to 1.

When the gears, that is, all four are of the same size, there will be no car speed, while if F is made larger than E, thus crossing the neutral point, the car will reverse. How this principle is used for reversing will be shown next.

"INSULATION"

When the day comes, if ever, on which it will be no longer necessary to use sub-titles in motion picture films, the art directors of the studios west and east will have a long sigh of relief. To them sub-titles are always something of a problem.

Would you believe that as a matter of fact it is harder to make a good sub-title than the average scene? This statement is made on the authority of Albert Weinberger, art director of the studios which produced the series of short educational films for the Willard Storage Battery company which are being shown regularly at the Alhambra theater.

When you see "Insulation" which is being screened next week, you will note a number of 'art titles," as they are called, that is sub-titles illuminated by artists drawings. Though they are on the screen but a fraction of a second, most of them took many hours to make.

One difficulty lies in the fact that the lettering and drawn objects are contained in a space 3-4th by 1 inch on the actual film while on the screen they must fill a space 10 feet by 12 feet, so that they are magnified more than 23,000 times. Any little inaccuracies, therefore, become large when the film is projected. If, for instance, the lettering is not straight by ever so scant a margin, the defect becomes pronounced on the screen.

Another difficulty which Mr. Weinberg says has now been solved by his and some other studios has been in getting the titles to apepar black and not grayish. This problem had to do with the chemistry of the fluid used in making the backgrounds of the titles.

"The move to do away with sub-titles entirely and make the pictures tell their own story has my enthusiastic support," said Mr. Weinberger. 1-28-1t

TEACHERS JOIN ASSOCIATIONS

Reports Show Kansas Has Highest Rating in Memberships in Associations.

Topeka, Jan. 28.—Membership in state and national teachers associations has grown by leaps and bounds in the last four years throughout the United States. In a compilation issued by the National Education association, Kansas is given the highest rating in per capita membership. For every 10,000 population, the Kansas State Teachers association has 75.1 members, or 13,301 out of a state population of 1,769,257. Membership of the Kansas State Teachers association has more than doubled in four years. In the last years the National Education association has grown from 48,814 to 83,524 members, the report says.

Nearest approaching Kansas in this respect is Colorado with a percentage of 67.3. Maine, 62.8; Iowa, 62.8; North Dakota, 67.8; Oregon, 50.9; Oklahoma, 59.4. Florida ranks 48th with a percentage of 21.

A number of state associations have shown phenomenal growth. The largest association in membership is that of Pennsylvania, 10,000. In 1918 it had but 18,826. Illinois, second has grown from 17,249 to 26,522 in four years; Ohio, from 7,000 to 17,600; Iowa, from 10,977 to 13,103; Texas, from 2,940 to 14,000; Oklahoma, from 3,000 to 12,065; Michigan, from 2,803 to 13,930; Massachusetts, from 12,000 to 13,000, Colorado, 2,249 to 6,140; Arkansas, 2,500 to 8,750.

New York, the largest state in population, with a teachers association of 15,000 members; has a per capita rank (per 101,000) of 14.6 ranking first among the states.

GOOD HEALTH OF CHILDREN FROM RICH BLOOD

Health, Strength and Vigor Built Up By Gude's Pepto-Mangan.

You see one child strong and robust; another child pale and thin. One eats practically the same foods and takes the same exercise as the other. What is the difference? Nearly always it's a difference in the quality of the blood. The strong child has rich, red blood and plenty of it. You love to see him eat so heartily. If your child is thin and weak, give him Gude's Pepto-Mangan to build up the blood and see the difference between a sickly, unhappy childhood and a flowering, healthy childhood.

A Bible Thought for Today.

NO MORE WAR:—Nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more.—Isaiah 2:4.

THE PEAK OF HUMBUG.

Suppose Representative Mondell or Senator McCumber had promised to pay a hundred dollars to his hired man and said to him: "I haven't the money now, but there are three or four chaps in Wyoming or Idaho that have given me their notes for money borrowed. Some of them are good; one of them is good, anyway. All of them ought to be good. Whatever interest they can pay I'll make over to you." The hired man would answer: "Now you see it and now you don't. I want my hundred, every cent of it; and I want to know when I'm going to get it and be sure that I get it. I'm not taking any chances, thank you. Pay or be sued." That is just about the way those soldiers must feel in regard to the suggestion that the payment of that bonus be made from the interest, collectable or non-collectable, on the allied debt. What is offered is a phantom, at any rate a contingent, bonus.

Do the Republicans really expect to pull the bonus-hunters by these shadowy promises and doubtful offers? That is gullery the first. An even more impossible one follows. They have got to persuade the taxpayers that billions of money, from whatever source derived, belonging to the United States can be spent without increasing taxation. Whatever interest may be received on the foreign debt will pay a corresponding amount of interest on the domestic debt. Give the foreign interest away, and there is so much more interest to pay on the domestic. A bonus can't be paid by hook or crook, unless the taxpayers pay it in some form or other. One would suppose that this rudimentary information wouldn't be beyond the intelligence of an idiot boy.

Last fall The Disabled Veteran Magazine said that a cash bonus would be "the greatest gold brick which the United States could hand the soldiers." A "gold brick" is solid, honest and respectable compared with what the Republican sages at Washington seem to be ready to do, though it must be admitted that they seem to have stolen or to be ready to steal the amendments to the revenue bill offered last November by Senator Simmons and Senator McKellar. Even from their opponents, jockeying for position, the sages are willing to learn unwisdom.

SEVEN VOTES TO ONE.

When the representatives of the Irish Free State go to the next meeting of the League of Nations, there will be work to do for some of the Senators who have combined an expert knowledge of Ireland, the British Empire and the League.

They can say that the Irish vote at Geneva is one more pro-British vote added to the six that already exist. That will please Michael Collins and Arthur Griffith immensely, and in order not to interfere with the senate theory of the League, there can be no doubt that the Irish delegates in the assembly will be instructed to ask Mr. Balfour's permission before rising to speak.

For if the Irish Free State should exhibit a mind of its own in world affairs how are the senators to go on proving that the votes of Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa are not all to be found in Mr. Lloyd George's vest pocket? Will they say that Canadians, 3,000 miles from England; Australians, at the other side of the globe, are not as free to make up their own minds as the Irish, a few miles from the English coast? They will not say that. Nor will they take the opposite line and ask people to believe that an Irish Parliament, established after an Irish rebellion, will be a bit more ready to work with Downing street than the Irish Parliament thinks is good for Ireland.

But if they cannot claim either that the Irish are more free than the other dominions or that the Irish are not free at all, they will be little left to say about the six votes of the British Empire. There never was anything worth saying.

The people who can tell how all the organizations of Newark should be run, usually decline to serve on any committee if asked to take hold and help.

Being urged to cultivate observant habits, many young men take their post on the corners and carefully observe all the women passers.

The people who are still using their 1921 automobile plates are likely soon to have an argument with the judge costing at least 1922 cents.

It is difficult for a man to break into the movie business, but if you can get to be a postmaster general, you can perhaps do it.

Spitting on the sidewalk is not, and anyway few people spit on their hands nowadays to see if they can do some more work.

Marriages of our American soldiers on the Rhine to German girls, are now taking the place of the former casualty lists.

Working rules being considered in many industries and loafing rules also seem to need equal attention.

PRESIDENT AND FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

(Philadelphia Record.)

Some of the senators believe that the President has no power to send a delegate to the Genoa conference unless congress shall authorize it, but later in the debate Mr. Brandegee modified his position a little, expressing the opinion that if there were any fund from which the President could pay a representative of his own he might send one, but this representative would have no power to bind the United States.

This was hardly worth saying because no one supposes that the representative of the United States could bind our government. He could not even if he were nominated by the President and the nomination confirmed by the senate. The senate confirmed the delegates to the peace conference, but it did not regard itself as bound by their actions; it rejected the treaty they negotiated. All foreign governments understand perfectly well that, no matter what the envoys of the United States agree to, the senate has a right to reject the treaty, and where no appropriation is required the house insists on its right to refuse the appropriation.

There is no dispute about the right of the senate to reject a treaty, and there is not much dispute about the right of the house of representatives to refuse an appropriation, if one is necessary, after the senate has ratified the action of the President. Therefore an agent of the United States, whether confirmed by the senate or not, has no power to bind his government.

But it remains true that the President may and in most cases must take the initiative in foreign affairs. Congress may not be in session, or, if in session the delay and the publicity of Senate proceedings may preclude consultation with the Senate in advance. The President as commander-in-chief of the army and navy may take action that will compel congress to authorize a war or repudiate the President's action. In many cases inaction would commit the country as truly as action would. A foreign situation may not stay as it is while the senate is debating the matter. Something has to be done at once, and the President is the only person who can do it. He must assume the responsibility, but we never had a President, and we never shall have one, who will assume the responsibility lightly and without consultation with his cabinet, or probably without consultation with some of the leaders in congress of his own party. The one thing that he cannot do is to shirk the responsibility and refer the matter to congress, which may debate the thing for days and even weeks, in the course of which some members will make very foolish speeches.

In most cases the President has the authority and the duty to act on his own responsibility, and commit the country until congress shall order otherwise, and it is not likely to, for no man can reach the presidency without a sense of his own responsibility. Mr. Roosevelt committed the country to the rape of Panama, but he is the only President we have had who was always conscious, not of his heavy responsibility, but of his vast power.

That in August, 1924, Mars will come within 35,000,000 miles of the earth? This is its nearest possible approach. In November, 1922, Venus will be within 25,000,000 of the earth and this is its nearest possible approach. On both Venus and Mars conditions seem more or less favorable to life. The climate of Mars is supposed to resemble a clear day at the top of a high mountain, while that of Venus is like a cloudy day in the lowlands of the tropics. A few astronomers believe that Mars is inhabited, the straight canals apparently being artificial, and on a few occasions white spots have been observed that suggest an attempt at communication by the Martians. Marconi stated several years ago that unusual sound resembling Morse characters are received from time to time by wireless apparatus that seem to come from a great distance outside the earth and that may probably be an attempt on the part of Mars to signal the earth.

WOOD IS MORE COSTLY IN U. S.

Timber Is Being Consumed Four Times As Fast As It Grows.

Bill Is Proposed Enlarging National Forests To Save Lumber.

(By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.)

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—Everything made of wood, from a toothpick to a bungalow, costs more in this country than it used to cost, and lumber prices are rising every year. The reason for this is simple. The people of the United States are consuming their timber supply four times as fast as it is growing.

This threatening situation is the cause of the attention which congress is now giving to the problem of the national timber supply. Several measures have been drafted, and the house committee on agriculture has been holding hearings on one of them, known as the Snell bill.

This bill has the support of most of the timber companies, and therefore has an excellent chance to be enacted into law. It has a number of provisions for enlarging the national forests, reforesting devasted forest areas and the like. But the important part of the problem is the protection of forests in private ownership from forest fires, and the regulation of cutting on these forests in such a way that the forest will not be destroyed but will reproduce itself.

The Snell bill seeks to accomplish this by appropriating large sums of money to be spent by the federal government, in co-operation with the state governments and the owners of timber lands, in the protection of private forests from fire. This is to be done on the time-honored system by which the federal government will not spend more in any one state than is appropriated in that state locally.

This measure does not meet with the undivided approval of conservationists. It does not give the federal power, represented by the secretary of agriculture working through the forest service, any direct authority to enforce rules of fire protection or to regulate methods of cutting so that forests shall not be destroyed. The federal government merely appropriates money, and makes experiments and suggestions. The making and enforcing of regulations is left to the state governments. In the opinion of those who hold that states' rights are all important, and that the tendency of federal government gradually to rob the state governments of their power and independence must be checked, this is as it should be.

The argument of the other side is that in practice, when matters of conservation are left to the state governments, they are not adequately attended to. One state, for instance, may pass an excellent forest law, and in another state, where forces interested in rapid exploitation dominate the legislature, practically nothing may be done to protect a natural resource which is of the utmost importance to all the people of the nation. During Roosevelt's administration the principle was established and acted upon that the protection of natural resources, which are of national extent and importance, should be a duty of the national government. The national forests were created on this principle in the face of considerable opposition and the wisdom of this measure has since been generally conceded. It is argued that it is only a logical extension of the same principle to protect forests in private ownership by federal authority, now that their protection has become necessary. To leave the protection of private forests to the state governments would be the same principle as leaving to the states the creation of forest reservations. The states failed in the latter duty and most of them have done nothing adequate to protect private timber lands.

The principle of co-operation between state and federal governments in this matter is obviously a compromise, and one which has been made before. Since, however, it leaves all real power in the state government, it is not a very effectual compromise, the conservationists urge. It is merely an opportunity for the federal power to make suggestions and for the tax payer to contribute a little money to the protection of forests in private ownership, without any assurance as to what he will get for his money. It may be argued very plausibly that the federal government should have authority in proportion to the amount of money it spends in any given case. If the protection of the forests is a function of the state governments, which they are capable of performing, then there should be no need for federal appropriations to help them do it.

It is also argued in this connection that the federal government has impaired the local autonomy of the states in many other ways. When, for example, national prohibition was substituted for local option, states' rights were abolished in the vital matter of sumptuary legislation. It is argued that when the states' rights advocate accept national prohibition, but objects to federal authority in the protection of a natural resource, he is swallowing a camel and straining at a gnat.

Those who believe that the federal government should have authority in proportion to the amount it appropriates for the protection of forests privately owned, so that it may know just what is being done with the tax payer's money, prefer the Capper bill to the Snell bill. The Capper bill provides, in the first place, for the taxation of forests products, so that federal revenue will be raised for providing the federal protection. This is certainly a business-like arrangement, but perhaps does not make as much difference to the tax payer as would appear at a glance, for the lumberman will merely add the tax to the price and the ultimate consumer will pay it after all. In addition to this, the Capper bill would give the secretary of agriculture authority to make and enforce regulations as to the protection of forests and the methods of cutting the timber. In this way, the federal government would at least be sure of getting its money's worth of protection.

The Capper bill, however, has not even been honored by a hearing. The Snell bill, with the lumber interests back of it, and the states' rights advocates appeased in the traditional manner, is probably the best measure that can be got through congress. The conservationists therefore are inclined to favor it as the best that can be had for the present. It will undoubtedly mean better fire protection for the 89 per cent of our forests which are in private hands, and better methods of lumbering. It will probably therefore be worth to the tax payer in the long run more than it costs him. And it may be superseded by a more thorough-going piece of legislation at some time in the future.

NEW LAW POINT CAUSES TROUBLE

International Law Relative to Confiscating Church Property in Wartime Brings Filing Of Claims.

London.—A new and embarrassing point of international law relating to the confiscation of church property in wartime has arisen in the British prize court.

Claims aggregating many hundreds of thousands of dollars have been entered by the owners of such articles as regalias, surplices, altar cloths, memorial glass windows, statuary, gold communion cups, crucifixes and rosaries, all of enemy origin, which were shipped by German and Austrian agents or manufacturers to American merchants, churches and colleges while the world war was in progress.

The ships conveying the goods were seized by British warships and the goods sold by public auction as enemy prizes.

Owners in the United States, under the leadership of Goetzes & Co., of Chicago, and of Treffel in Germany, represented by former Senator J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois, claim the amount realized from the prize sale, and losses and damages.

Claimants argue that under the laws of war of all nations, all church property is sacred and exempt from war seizure.

The British government, however, contends that the money paid to the shippers of the sacred goods went to German firms to be used by Germany in the prosecution of the campaign against the allies.

The British procurator-general's court has just decided that the question is so delicate and so involved with old and new regulations and war practices that it must go in its whole aspect before the full prize court, because there is doubt whether the German firms in Germany did not have an interest in the American firms, and also whether the prize court ought not to submit the case to the new world court at Geneva or the Washington Conference to be settled under the new international laws of war.

In the meantime, the money remains in the British treasury, awaiting a new dispensation on the rules affecting church property in wartime. Roman Catholics all over the world are showing great interest in the issue.

TYPHUS IS RAGING IN POLAND, IS REPORT

Warsaw—Government inspectors say there is much typhus among the thousands of Polish men, women and children who are being repatriated from Russia through the camp at Baranowicze, near the Polish-Russian border. The disease, they assert, is becoming more widespread as it does each winter as the cold weather sets in.

Repatriation of the Polish population which was withdrawn by the Russian armies in 1915 in their retreat in scarcely half finished. It began last July. Estimates of the number to be repatriated vary from 600,000 by the Polish commisison to 1,300,000 by the Russian evacuation commission. It is estimated that more than 300,000 already have passed through the Baranowicze camp alone and that the total number returned to date is approximately 450,000. The case of these people is in the hands of the Polish government aided by several welfare organizations.

These refugees have been dying in such numbers at the Baranowicze camp that the authorities have found it necessary to bury the victims in great trenches. Of 62,000 who passed through the state in November, it is estimated by Polish health officials that 1,500 died after reaching the camp. Doctors attribute the majority of deaths to disease contracted enroute and brought about by exposure and lack of proper nourishment.

WOULD CHANGE NAME OF CITY

Waterloo, Belgium—One of the new names suggested for this town is "Fochloo," after Field Marshal Foch. The desire to change the name is due to an effort to avoid recalling "the humiliation of an Allied and friendly power"—the defeat of Napoleon.

A petition is now being circulated among the residents of Waterloo asking parliament to pass a bill abandoning the old name. Several new names beside that of "Fochloo" have been suggested.

"The truth is mighty and will prevail," quoted the Wise Guy. "In spite of which some one of us hate to have it told about us," replied the Simple Mug.

GERMAN EXPORT HOUSES REVIVE

They Now Seek Agencies In U. S. to Avoid Cost Of Establishing Their Own Offices.

Berlin — German export firms which before the war maintained branch offices in the United States now are seeking to establish agencies with reliable houses there, to avoid the cost of opening and maintaining their own establishments. A few German firms already have succeeded in making satisfactory connections in this manner, and the Americans are accepting and forwarding orders for German goods.

While American imports to Germany are negligible, the German export trade to America is reported gradually improving, despite the fluctuating value of the mark which prevents the making of long time contracts. The majority of the exports are bought by the Americans on a cash basis, although verbal contracts are common for future deliveries, prices however being quoted in foreign exchanges.

Virtually all German exporters now quote prices in the monies of the countries to which they sell. It is understood this policy has been adopted at the suggestion of the government, for the checks eventually are deposited in the Riechsbank, which is the forwarding agency for the government in the payment of war indemnities, which must be foreign exchange.

This policy has created a peculiar attitude on the part of the German business men, whose profits often depend upon a depreciated currency in his own country. He is therefore loath to see the mark rise in value, for this net proceeds would be proportionately reduced.

In spite of wage increase and high cost of raw materials, German factories working for the export trade are reported to have been running at full capacity for the last three months, with orders ahead which it will take weeks to fill.

Kitty Says She Will Marry, But Ranlet Says Not

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 28.— Kitty Gordon, the actress, insists that she is going to marry Ralph Ranlet, New York broker, in the spring, it is Ranlet, according to New York dispatches, insists that she isn't going to do anything of the kind, woof, woof.

Ranlet's denials piqued the possessor of America's most beautiful back not a little.

"I am shocked and surprised," she said, among other things.

Ranlet, it seems, is under the impression that Miss Gordon is now married to her vaudeville partner of the last three years, Jack Wilson. She said this was untrue.

"I have never been married to anyone but Henry Beresford of London," she said. "I played in vaudeville with Jack Wilson for several years and I am going to join him again soon, but we have never been married. I have no intention of marrying anyone but Ralph Ranlet and I expect my divorce decree from England soon.

The actress said that she believed someone had told Ranlet that she was married to Wilson and she exhibited a telegraph she said was from him asking that she make public denial that she was married to Wilson.

French Girl Is "Living Memory" To Parents of Dead U. S. Boy

Mlle. Mirielle Masson and (Inset) Mrs. Frederick P. Patton

Glencoe, Ill, Jan. 28—(By NEA Service—Mlle. Mirielle Masson, a pretty French girl, is making her home with Dr. and Mrs. Frederick P. Patton, of Glencoe—and playing the part of a "living memory" to the Pattons' dead son, killed a year ago in an auto accident.

During the World War, Dr. Patton, a surgeon with the A. E. F., quit the front for a rest period in Paris. He visited at the home of Professor Arnie Masson, where he met Mirielle, Masson's 15-year-old daughter.

She became a favorite and he told her of his son, John—just her age

After the war Patton returned home and Joan was killed. The tragedy imperiled Mrs. Patton's health and Dr. Patton wrote to Professor Masson, begging that Mirielle be sent to America to visit them.

So it was that the little French girl came to the Patton home. She has taken the place of the boy "just her age," and Mrs. Patton is rapidly improving in health.

Ohio Club Women

BY MRS. GEORGE ELLIOTT M'CORMICK.

District meeting dates and places so far determined follow:

April 7 and 8, Middle North, at Willard. April 25 and 26 Central, at Westerville April 27 and 28, Southeast at Chillicothe, May 2 and 3, Middle East, at Dennison, May 4 and 5, Middle West, at Urbana.

The other district meeting places and dates are to be decided soon, it is announced.

By unanimous vote the Ohio Federation executive committee, at its first meeting with Mrs C S. Selover the president, in Cleveland, Jan. 16 and 17, adopted the General Federation plan of organizaiton of its various departments save that of press and publicity which is to remain as it is now conducted.

With this new plan a department of fine arts is created Divisions of art, literature and music, each with its own chairman, come under this head. Under the reorganization other changes embrace the following:

Department of applied education, under which are the divisions of education, home economics. library extension and conservation of natural resources. These divisions may be again be subdivided into as many committees as the various chairmen deem advisable with the approval of the department chairman and the president. For example, under education would fall kindergarten, vocational training and guidance, rural schools peace, etc.

Department of American citizenship, taking in the divisions of Americanization, citizenship training and community service.

Department of public welfare This is foremost in the public eye today with the federal government recognizing its need through the proposed act for the establishment of such a department. In the Ohio federation's department of public welfare there will be the divisions of child welfare, health and social and industrial conditions.

For each there will be a department chairman with whom all the division chairmen are to confer in outlining their work. These department chairmen with the president will assist in determining the policy to be followed

"This division of work as adopted by the General Federation has passed the experimental stage," Mrs Selover declares in voicing her approval of the adopted changes. "It is really much necessary by the organization of the General Federation committees which are composed of the state chairmen of the corresponding committees. General outlines of the work are provided for by the General Federation which greatly simplifies the work of the state chairmen."

The Ohio Federation executive board at its Cleveland meeting decided that the legislative committee of the state body shall consist of the chairman and the executive board but that in cases of emergency the executive committee together with the chairman will be free to take such action as it deems necessary

Hereafter an applicant for a loan from the loan scholarship fund will be required to fill out a questionnaire, to be signed by the club woman recommending her, her physician, minister and high school principal, and the vice president of her district and the chairman of the scholarship fund. Speaking of this Mrs. Selover says:

"This is a wonderful work, so far reaching in its results we hope every club that has not paid its assessment of only 5 cents per capita will do so in order that as many girls as possible can be benefited. Clubs pay promptly as they know that their scholarship dues have not been paid and the delay usualy comes when there has been a change in administration This is an obligation every club assumes when it joins the federation."

Mrs. William H. Sharp, Columbus past state federation president gave her report at the Cleveland board meeting as General Federation director for Ohio. She gave in detail the action taken by the General Federation board at its Chicago meeting Jan. 4 and 5.

Mrs. Selover entertained state executive board members at dinner at the Women's club, following which Mrs. James Fleming, Cleveland, state corresponding secretary, was hostess at a theater party. Miss Genevieve Cline, Cleveland, state legislative chairman, was luncheon hostess to the board members at the Cleveland Athletic club.

Mrs. C. S. Selover, Cleveland, president of the Ohio Federation of Women's clubs, expects to leave about the middle of February for California. She will return in time for the district meetings in the spring.

Mrs. John MacKee, Springfield, state art chairman, will address the New Era club at Bucyrus, Jan. 30. Mrs. James R. Hopley, past state president of the Ohio Federation, is a member of this club.

Modest Open Sleeve Curbs Frankness Of Evening Gown

By MARY BROOKS PICKEN

IF modesty forbids acceptance of the sleeveless mode in evening gowns, perhaps with a little coaxing will come the conviction that the grace and winsomeness of an abbreviated type of sleeve, such as this model takes pride in, is sufficient excuse for its deficiency in performing a sleeve's real mission—that of covering the arm.

In this evening gown a very plain foundation of crepe satin in rapids, a medium-greenish shade of blue, loses every vestige of its severity by the overdrapery of softly gathered and bloused waist panels and a front apron effect of cream lace of cobwebby texture.

From the blue jeweled girdle that encircles the loose waist line, pendants are suspended at each side back, thus providing interest to what might otherwise prove a very ordinary effect in the back. The beads that form the Bateau neck line and secure the upper and lower edges of the sleeves are of a tone that matches the girdle.

POLLY and PAUL ....and PARIS

CHAPTER XVI.

THE "DRESS MICROBE."

Never in all her life before had Polly felt such a longing for beautiful clothes. She had been quite content to have her things of nice material, her tailored suits well made but unobtrusive, her other frocks becoming and fairly modish. But clothes as a special study had not appealed. She had not realized that a whole personality could be changed by clothes

As she sat in that exquisite showroom of Paveret's watching the human display figures parading and sailing before her, full of confidence and grace because of the things they wore, Polly knew that the art of dress was not the superficial thing some people said it was.

She pictured herself in the evening gown of rose silk tulle that a black haired girl was wearing. There were big "plaques" of mauve and cream chenille flowers set cunningly into the frothy material and a big sash of the same color

In such a gown any woman could be beautiful and fascinating—could make men love her. He'd love her now who was already hers . . .

And that semi-nude frock of deep blue lace and the silver tissue the slender skirt tipping off in points that revealed lovely ankles

"It would exactly suit me," Polly told herself, glancing to see if Paul was watching it

"Peach of a dress," said Polly as if she had spoken aloud. "How much would such a thing cost, d'you suppose?"

"I wonder," murmured Polly, feeling afraid to ask.

An American woman sitting next her was interested in it, too. She was stout and gowned expensively—in awful taste

"Not very showy," she remarked good naturedly "for 1900 francs' I prefer the more delicate with the tangerine velvet bows that's only 250 francs more and then you've got something that looks like Paris."

"How much," smiled Polly, "is 1900 francs—I always have to translate into dollars? Let's see, about $160 isn't it?"

"Yes but you've got to add the tax that brings it close to $200."

Polly winced. She had never paid $100 for a dress in her life. She wondered if Paul would think a hundred an impossible price? Could he afford it? But two hundred—that was out of the question. Her heart sank.

"Are all the things as expensive as that?" she asked her neighbor.

"Oh, you could get something for a hundred and a quarter, maybe—a tailored suit, or something very simple. They do charge terrible! Why don't you get some little dress maker to copy one for you? I did once, and it only cost me $69. There are lots of places on side streets where you can save heaps of money and get things just as good."

Polly seized the idea, and felt her spirits rise with a leap As she wormed the rest of the promenade her mind was busily planning She would show Paul how cleverly she could manage

One day, when Paul had gone to the office Polly prowled Pluming herself with her French phrases her map, her pocket dictionary and her most self-sufficient manner, she sallied forth to conquer the strange world

FROM MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

If you could use dried beans as a meat substitute remember two details: All beans require long, slow cooking and the addition of fat. The long cooking softens the skins and makes them digestible and the fat adds the element lacking in beans.

There are at least eight varieties of dried beans to choose from—white, speckled and colored The colored beans are richer in flavor than white beans

Baked Beans.

Three cups navy beans 1 2 pound salt pork, 1 dessertspoon salt, 2 dessertspoons molasses, 2 dessertspoons sugar, 1 teaspoon mustard, 1 cup boiling water, 1 small onion.

Pick over beans Wash through several waters Let stand over night in 3 quarts of cold water. If the beans are this year's crop two hours will be long enough for them to stand in water.

Drain. Put in kettle with fresh cold water to a little more than cover. Add 1 l teaspoon soda. Bring to the boiling point and let boil five minutes. Drain and rinse in cold water. Put onion in the bottom of the bean pot Scald rind of pork and scrape well Cut off a thin slice and put in bean pot

Cut through the rind of the remaining piece in half inch squares. Pour half the beans in the bean pot. Add the salt pork and the rest of the beans. Pour over the seasonings mixed with the boiling water. Add enough more boiling water to cover beans. Cover bean pots and bake in a slow oven for six hours. Add more water as necessary during the first four hours of baking. Then pull the pork to the top of the beans to brown. Let the liquor cook away about half.

BRING REFUGEES BACK TO RUSSIA

2,000,000 Russians Who Fled are Cream of Russian Intelligence, Engineers, Bankers, Scientists, Teachers and Merchants Needed.

Moscow, Jan. 28.—Russia's lack of constructive leadership for its industrial and commercial reconstruction becomes more apparent every day, and the necessity for inducing refugees to return is clearer to the Bolshevists, perhaps, than to non-Bolshevists who have less knowledge of the inefficiency of government departments and the difficulties the Communists have behind the scenes.

Premier Lenine has repeatedly stressed the desirability of attracting back to Russia the 2,000,000 Russians who have fled to other countries and represent the cream of Russian intelligence. The engineers, scientists, bankers, teachers and merchants are greatly needed.

Letts, Esthonians and Lithuanians played a large part in the business life of old Russia. They had enjoyed the benefits of both Swedish and German culture. Many of them are highly trained specialists and managers and directors of various enterprises. But they have nearly all left disorganized Russia and taken up residence in the new Baltic states.

Baltic merchants will not re-enter trade in Russia for they lack confidence in the Communist government. Manufacturers are unwilling to resume their old work under government concessions. Even property owners, or rather former property owners, are unwilling to take back their apartment houses and hotels under the proposed concession plan. Consequently the new economic policy is falling far short of expectations.

Free domestic trade is not entirely free. The term is misleading. It is impossible for merchants to ship goods at will on Russian Railways. Permits are required for each shipment. It is difficult to get these. The pilfering on rail lines is extensive. There is no insurance.

It is largely through the goods carried by hand that markets in the great cities are supplied. Railway men carry flour and sugar from the Ukraine to eke out an existence. It brings a better price in Moscow and Petrograd. Meat is also carried to the cities by railway employes and regular dealers who employ carriers.

Lenine's insistence that the government must win the confidence and support of the intelligent classes is generally regarded as a preparation for further movements to the right in governmental policies as soon as it is possible to make them without disrupting the Communist party utterly.

The Communist party is rapidly becoming a party in the sense that the United States and England have parties. Its important leaders show daily signs of making further concessions to the hostile majority which will have nothing to do with Communist principles, or half Communist schemes, such as the concession plan of letting factories to old owners.

The building up of the far eastern republic at Chita under Bolshevist domination, but with general elections and right of private property, is looked upon in Russia as an indication of revised policies which will eventually be adopted in European Russia.

SCOUTS AID INDUSTRY SHOW

They Abandon Many Events for Anniversary Week to Help Make Rotary Exhibit a Success.

The 12th anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America occurs on Wednesday, February 8, and it has been the custom throughout the country to celebrate the week as Boy Scout anniversary week. A number of plans were laid locally for the celebration of this week. However, in the spirit of service and in order to assist in the Industrial show being given by the Newark Rotary club for the purpose of raising funds for civic good and particularly for crippled children all night meetings and celebrations of anniversary week have been canceled with the exception of the Father and Son banquet, which will be held on Tuesday, February 7, at the K. of P. hall.

This is the third annual Father and Son banquet to be given by the Newark council, Boy Scouts of America. Last year 319 men and boys sat down together, and preparations are being made this year for 400. A splendid program has been arranged. A. R. Harper of Columbus, will be the principle speaker, and all trimmings that go with a banquet will be provided.

BABY'S FIRST WORD.

It is commonly believed that a baby, when growing up and learning to talk, speaks the word "ma" and "da" through constantly hearing these uttered by others. This idea, however, is upset by certain students of languages, who advance a totally different theory.

In most languages, "ma" is generally the first syllable spoken by a child. It is the root of the word "mother." As a baby opens its mouth and then exhales breath it is quite possible that it makes this exclamation unconsciously.

Some people believe that there is no such thing as a "natural" tongue to the world: for, they say, if all babies over one year old were caused to become deaf and dumb, they would be obliged to go through the identical slow process of inventing and evolving a tongue as man was compelled to do in days gone by.

Harriet Ann Rine.
Harriet Ann Elliott, daughter of Samuel and Mary Elliott, was born in Coshocton county, July 31, 1857, departed this life January 6, 1922, aged 64 years 5 months and 6 days. She was married to George H. Rine, and to this union were born 12 children, two having preceded her to the better world. Ten are left to mourn the loss of a kind and loving mother. She joined the Mt. Pleasant Christian church at the age of 16 and was a faithful member until death.

Her toil is past, her work is done,
And she is fully blest,
She fought the fight, the victory won,
And entered into rest.

Then let our teardrops cease to flow,
God has but called His own,
But let our hearts in every woe,
Still say, "Thy Will Be Done."

Wall Street.
New York, Jan. 28.—Trading on the stock exchange at the opening of today's session was curtailed by the storm, the wires of many commission houses being out of commission. Prices were irregular, but mainly upward. Columbia Graphophone preferred made a further gain of 1 5-8 on its better financial condition and American Ice rose three points. Pools were active in chemicals, shippings and utilities, the latter including Public Service of New Jersey and People's Gas.

Various speculative shares, including many obscure issues, were bid up by pools in the course of today's short stock market session. American Ice, National Biscuit preferred, Remington Typewriter, May Department Store and Kresge rose two to three points. Among representative stocks Mercantile Marine preferred General Electric, Mexican Petroleum, People's Gas, Associated Dry Goods gained one to 1 1-2 points. Rails were neglected, except for a two point gain in Norfolk and Southern. The closing was firm. Sales approximated 175,000 shares. Liberty issues and most other bonds were irregular.

Chicago Grain Review.
Chicago, Jan. 28—Wheat was under the influence of strong markets at Liverpool and Buenos Aires at the Chicago Board of Trade opening today. There was a good class of commission house buying, particularly by a house with foreign connections.

The advance continued until checked by selling on resting orders at around $1.17 1-2 for May. The undertone held firm.

Coarse grains were dull, but higher in sympathy with wheat.

May corn opened 1-8 to 1-4 higher at 53 5-8 to 53 7-8 and July was 3-8 higher at 55 5-8.

Oats were 1-4 higher with May 39 1-4 to 39 3-8 and July 40 1-4.

Provisions were strong at an advance of ten to 15 points. Shorts were the best buyers being influenced by the condition of the live hog markets. There was some selling on May lard by profit takers.

MAN TAKEN ILL IN BUGGY; IMPROVES

Robert Musselman of the Union Station road was taken suddenly ill Friday afternoon while in the city. He was sitting in a bugy in front of the Carlile furniture store. As he started to drive away a part of the harness broke and the horse became frightened and the buggy struck the right rear fender of the Carlile car which was parked in front of the store.

A bystander stepped into the street and held the horse and then noticed that the man in the buggy was ill. Many thought that the man had suffered a stroke of paralysis. He was taken to the City Hospital in the Bradley ambulance, where he was given aid and later taken to his home near Heath.

Dr. J. W. Hornby saw Mr. Musselman at his home in the evening and said that he had suffered a nervous collapse which affected his heart. His pulse was very low Friday night but by the aid of stimulants became stronger.

The fender on the Carlile machine was damaged. The horse was taken to a livery barn and cared for.

"My husband died before the doctor arrived," sobbed the widow. "Too bad! Too bad!" mourned the sympathetic friend. "That's what the doctor kept saying," wailed the widow.

SCHOOL TO HAVE MILK AT RECESS

Undernourished Children Will Be Looked After At Central School—Plan May Be Expanded.

The undernourished child in the public schools, is to be given an equal chance with the children who are properly nourished. Plans are under way to serve milk twice a day to the children of the lower grades.

The Parent-Teachers' association of the Central school has plans under way, and expects to start the experiment in a few days. Since the economic conditions have become so severe, the teacher has found that she has greater problems than ever.

This week, a small child was sent to the blackboard and upon reaching there she fainted. She was revived and when questioned as to illness, stated she had not felt ill, but weak. Further questioning developed that she had had but a crust of bread in two days. While most cases are not so pronounced, many children are not receiving the proper nourishment, and even those who come from homes, well provided for, often do not have the proper things to eat.

With this in view the Parent-Teachers' association will serve milk twice a day, eight ounces at recess and a like amount at the recess in the afternoon. All children who desire may have this and any of the parents wishing to contribute to a fund to continue the experiment may do so.

A civic organization is discussing the feasibility of inaugurating the milk feeding in two other schools of the city, selecting those in the poorer residence sections of the city.

To test the experiment scales will be installed and the children will be weighed about every two weeks.

NEWARK MAN HELD FOR ENTERING FRAT HOUSE

A young man giving his name as Carl Lathrobe, 22, of Newark is being held for investigation by Columbus police following his capture early Friday morning by fraternity men at the Zeta Beta Tau house at 174 East Woodruff avenue, Columbus police believe that he is the man who has burglarized many Ohio State fraternity houses.

Lathrobe was heard entering the house at 5:30 Friday morning and was captured by Leonard Ginsberg, a member of the fraternity. Lathrobe told the men at the house that he had entered the house by mistake thinking it another fraternity house. Stories he told conflicted however and he was turned over to the police.

MEN PRESENT PROGRAM AT SECOND CHURCH

The social event last night at the Second Presbyterian church was a "men's event" from start to finish. About 90 were present to enjoy the program.

The Sphagetti brothers and Jockow introduced their novel street scene (assisted by a victrola). Messrs John Woodbridge and John Africa were the organ grinders and Bill Weld ably presented Jockow.

Owing to the late arrival of M. Chapeau, the mind reading act was delayed. In the midst of Sherman Sugg's apology the professor arrived and the performance went on. The professors ability to tell colors and various instruments while blindfolded, was marvelous, and his ability to figure numbers unseen was indeed captivating.

The Boy Scouts of the church demonstrated their ability in pyramid building and also "first aid." One of the boys was "hurt" when the pyramid collapsed and his comrades bandaged him and carried him off on a quickly made litter.

Court was set up and John Flory anonunced that Bill Grieser was charged with being a suspicious character. Rev. B. R. Weld was attorney for the defense and C. Harrington Davis prosecuting attorney. A venire of jurymen was drawn and 3 women and 3 men sat in judgment. Much evidence was brought in on the case. The opposing attorneys had lively tilts and the judges frequently called for order. The jury disagreed as to a decision in the case and the judge had no alternative than to commit the prisoner to the hoosgow until a re-trial.

Tea and coffee and doughnuts were served.

HAWKE SUES MAN AS WRITER OF LETTERS

Cincinnati, Jan. 28.—Attorney George W. Hawke, of the good citizenship league, who has been active in enforcing the prohibition law, today entered suit for $50,000 against Peter H. Kane, a salesman. With his petition Hawke presented photographic copies of letters and missives in which he is referred to as a thief and a liar.

Some of the letters are signed "Ku Klux Klan." All of the missives were unsigned, Hawke said, and he would not disclose what evidence he had that Kane was the author of them, other than to say that is was conclusive. Kane is out of the city at present. His wife said she believed the charges against Kane were without foundation.

REVALUATION ASKED HERE

Farmers Confer With Auditor and Commissioners to Secure More Equitable Tax Arrangement.

The question of the re-valuation of farm lands was discussed at a meeting at 10 o'clock this morning in the convention room of the court house. It was arranged by the Licking County Farm Bureau, to confer with the county auditor and the county commissioners.

About 500 farmers attended the meeting. There has been dissatisfaction among the farming interests of the county over the increase in the land valuation by the county auditor. The farming interests brought forth the fact that the valuation and subsequently taxes in Licking county are higher than in 61 other counties of the state, and they want the valuations restored to their previous values.

Auditor Fred S. Wilson gave an exhaustive explanation of the taxation conditions in the county, which necessitated the increase.

Jackson Merrill of Lima township and ex-Congressman Ashbrook and others reviewed the situation from the farmers standpoint.

Under the law it is permissible for the county auditor to "arbitrarily increase" the land values if it is found necessary, and also it makes it permissible for the auditor to restore the former valuations if he finds conditions warrant.

MOVIES HARD HIT BY GAMBLING CRAZE

Havanna, Cuba—Theater and moving picture managements are threatening to close their houses as a protest against what they declare is an enormous increase in illegal gambling. Athletic and other exhibitions upon which bets can be made have become so common, they claim, that the public has neither the money nor the desire to buy tickets for amusements where the wagering thrill is absent.

Commercial bodies also are supporting a campaign to limit betting to those enterprises licensed under the tourist encouragement law.

Quite a number were in Mt. Vernon Tuesday attending the divorce trial of Mrs. Grace Tiltun vs. J. W. Tiltun in common pleas court, Judge Lemert of Zanesville presiding. Hancock for $35,000 damages, alleging that Hancock allenated the affections of Mrs. Tiltun.

Fashion Plate of the Period of "The Rainbow Girl."

SCREEN ACTOR HAD A "BIRD" OF AN EXCUSE.

During the making of "Lovetime" the William Fox photoplay which comes to the Alhambra theater next week with Shirley Mason as its star the production was held up nearly an hour one morning by the non-arrival of one of the players who, though playing a minor role, was nevertheless essential to the resumption of work, as but half of his scene had been shot.

The player in question was notorious for tardiness, but generally furnished such plausible excuses that, as a rule, he was punished with a slight reprimand. On the morning in question, as director Mitchell, nearly frantic, passed up and down looking at his watch every few minutes, while the studio force tried to reach the delinquent by telephone, the offending player strolled leisurely into the studio.

"Well, what excuse this time?" thundered Mitchell facing him.

"I'm very sorry," answered the actor, "but my canary got out of its cage, and I had to stay home a little while and catch it."

The SKIPPER off for the big City in THE SKIPPER'S LAST RESORT
Toonerville Comedies by Fontaine Fox.

Power," which may be seen at the Auditorium theater, Sunday, are a perfect example of fine team work in difficult roles. As the wife of an ex-convict, Miss Rich's performance is a revelation of girlishness, pathos and the self-sacrifice of motherhood. Mr. Peters, one of the most popular leading men on the screen, gives a powerful and sympathetic performance of an ex-convict who is trying to reform.

The story, by Charles Kenyon, was directed by Frank Lloyd and the production as a whole is marked by many clever and subtle touches not often seen on the screen. Unlike most stories that deal with the underworld, the crime element is entirely lacking. The plot centers about the two characters in their struggle against a past that will not stay past. In the end, however, the strength of character of the reformed crook forces respect from the secret police and freedom from persecution by them.

An excellent cast, including De Witt C. Jennings, Gertrude Claire and Sydney Ainsworth are responsible for a splendidly acted drama.

CURTAIN UP AT 8:45 O'CLOCK TONIGHT.

There is only one "Rainbow Girl" on tour. Consequently the only one will be presented at the Auditorium theater tonight at 8:45 p. m.

The piece includes two score of prominent characters, evolved by Jerome K. Jerome, except in one or two minor parts.

In vocal quality, in youthfulness and terpsichorean agility it is claimed that the chorus eclipses anything of the kind introduced in recent years. To unfold the grace of the individual groupings, Joseph Urban has supplied four interior sets which are a credit to his artistry; the costuming is as colorful as the subject.

The music is by Louis A. Hirsch, who wrote the score for "Going Up" and the "Follies." The duets are sung by Kathryn Richmond and George Lydecker, who play the leads. The eccentricity of Billy Clifton in the character of a bishop and the grotesqueness of Roy Cochrane in the make-up of an English butler, guarantees the merriment, which is bountiful.

TOM MIX IN "AFTER YOUR OWN HEART."

Tom Mix, noted William Fox screen star will be the Auditorium theater attraction for next Monday and Tuesday and he will be screened in his latest feature "After Your Own Heart" in which he as Herbert Parker, has a role that will thrill from start to finish.

A STRANGE TRIO IN "TROPICAL LOVE."

The common bond of loneliness drew together Rosario, the Seeker and the Drifter, the three principal characters of "Tropical Love," the Grand theater's offering Sunday, with Ruth Clifford starred as Rosario, and Reginald Denny as the Drifter and Fred Turner as the Seeker.

Rosario, beautiful child of nature, wondered why her skin was fair and her mother's brown. The Seeker knew not who he was, whither he came from, nor where he was going. It was instinct that, after twenty years, guided him to the scene of the tragedy that had bereft him of his mind. The Drifter, young and educated, had cut himself way from the bonds of society to find adventure.

On a sugar plantation in Porto Rico fate threw these three together, and each became something precious to the other during the adventure and mystery that followed. Ralph Ince directed this fascinating picturization of Guy McConnell's story, "Peaks of Gold," which was produced in Porto Rico.

THEME OF UNIVERSAL APPEAL IN PICTURE.

If opinions of critics in other cities mean anything to local picture fans, Lois Weber's latest screen production, "What Do Men Want?" will offer something unusual in entertainment when this great American drama of the hunt for happiness opens its engagement at the Grand theater, for three days beginning Monday.

Miss Weber who is credited with having produced more successful photoplays than any other person in the film industry, wrote and directed such masterly productions as "Where Are My Children?" "The Price of a Good Time," "To Please One Woman," "Scandal," "The Blot" and numerous other big-time bits that have thrilled millions of picture fans all over the country.

EILEEN PERCY IN "MAID OF THE WEST."

Eileen Percy, William Fox star will be the Alhambra theater feature tomorrow, coming in a story of the west "Maid of the West."

It is difficult to make a wild flower grow in a hot house. "Betty" was a girl of the West—impetuous, carefree, and not used to the binding conventions. When they took her to the city, But it did not change her nature, and there is one of the humorous situations as the result.

Miss Percy is supported by a strong cast and Alhambra theater patrons will be pleased with "Maid of the West."

Findlay—The Women's Federation of Clubs has decided to launch a health campaign in city schools next semester in charge of Miss Elizabeth Woodson, public health nurse.

Just Average Folks

Most of the wealthy used to be just plain folks like those we rub elbows with in the shop, the factory, and on the farm.

They weren't blessed with any particular luck but won by sticking to a resolve to invariably spend less than they made.

This bank always has been especially anxious to help the average folks who save persistently for the day of opportunity or need.

It has no higher mission than to safeguard and profitably employ such savings, and to keep them constantly available.

Next Week's Games.

Tuesday: Neal Avenue M. E. vs. First Presbyterian; East Main M. E. vs. East Main U. B.

Friday: First Baptist vs. St. Paul's Lutheran; First M. E. vs. West End Lutherans.

Neal Avenue M. E. lost to the West End Lutherans in the first game last night at the Y. M. C. A. in the Y. M. C. A. Sunday School league. The boys of both squads showed fast work in the first half, with the Lutherans in the lead. Young McElroy of the Neal Avenue crew failed to have that vision for basket shooting, as he was unable to cage the ball but a few times.

The second half of this game was a scrap as the Lutherans were running a high score rapidly. Orr, of the Lutheran squad, scored the greatest number of points for his team, with Baker and Highbarger close behind. These three players with the other two gave the Neal avenue boys a run for their lives. Final score, 45 to 15.

The second game was a victory for the East Main M. E. over the First Baptists. This game was a speedy one, as both teams were looking forward for second place in the league standing. The First Baptist squad was lost when it came to shooting for they were heavily guarded by their opponents. They scored only one point in the first half with the M. E. boys far in the lead. There was a rough and tumble performance for some time in the second half. The East Main M. E. squad had the First Baptists in a trap at this time, dropping the ball through the ring one after the other. Final score, 31 to 5.

Referee, McMahon; scorer, Lindrooth; timer, Johnson; 15-minute halves.

REMOVAL OF BARBED WIRE MARKS FIRST STEP OF FREEDOM FOR IRISH PEOPLE

As soon as the treaty establishing the Irish Free State was ratified British soldiers were ordered to vacate Dublin. This exclusive photo shows them fraternizing with the crowds as they removed barricades that had protected Dublin Castle, Dublin City Hall and other government property. Crowds followed the soldiers about, for the removal of barbed wire and the packing up of the military was the first significant act marking Irish freedom.

ICE BOATING IS SPORT AT LAKE

Seven Craft Have Been Making Use of Ice in Past Two Weeks.

After waiting two years, the yacht enthusiasts of Buckeye Lake Yacht club are again favored with this splendid and invigorating outdoor sport, which is very unusual for lakes lying as far south as Buckeye Lake.

There are seven boats in commission at Buckeye Lake Yacht club and there has been sailing for the past two Sundays. With the zero weather the early part of last week, the ice should be at least seven or eight inches thick over the entire lake.

With favorable wind velocity for next Sunday, there no doubt will be races arranged between this fast moving craft. All those having friends owning boats should certainly take advantage of the opportunity of a thrill abroad an ice boat which is second only to aeroplaning.

The fastest official speed of an ice boat, 120 miles per hour, was made by the yacht "Clarel" on the Shrewsbury river at Red Banks, N. J. This speed cannot be obtained at Buckeye Lake but 50 to 75 miles an hour across Buckeye Lake, with nothing but the wind propelling the boat is a sensation which will not soon be forgotten.

CO-EDS NOT A HANDICAP

Northwestern Athletes Declare Charge Made By College Paper is Not True.

Chicago, Jan. 28.—Co-eds are not a handicap but an inspiration to the college athlete, two star football players declared today in replying to charges of Northwestern University alumni that the consistently poor showing made by the school's teams was due to the distracting influence of Miss Northwestern.

Jack Bryant, Chicago half back, who was one of the chief reasons why Chicago beat Princeton last fall and Henry Penfield, captain of the 1921 Northwestern football teams, complained to local newspapers and took issue with the charges made by alumni and editorially in the college paper.

"I never knew how to play football until I met a certain little co-ed," said Bryant. "She furnished inspiration enough to make a star of any one." Bryant recently was married to a co-ed.

"MY BABY"

But mother love cannot be denied. And now she clasped her lost one to her starved breast and gave thanks to God. A remarkable picture of the hidden forces of life.
